Coffman Engineers Matches Employee Contributions for Haiti Relief Fund

Coffman Engineers is committed to being a good corporate citizen with a dedication to society in times of need. The company supports events, organizations and causes that our employees are involved with, either by giving of time, money, or effort.

Employees of Coffman Engineers generously donated $3,100 to the American Red Cross Haitian Relief Fund, and the company matched the amount for a total of $6,200. In addition, Coffman Engineers made a donation of $3,500 to the Inland Empire Region of the American Red Cross, where Craig Lee, a Principal in the Spokane Office, is actively involved and currently sits on the Board of Directors.

Dave Coffman, President of Coffman Engineers, complimented the employee's donation efforts on the firm's intranet site. "We are all very pleased with the compassionate support from those at Coffman Engineers who contributed to the people of Haiti. It is times like these when people from all over the world can help those in need and we see the goodness in humanity."

For 30 years, Coffman Engineers has provided civil, structural, industrial mechanical, process piping, commercial mechanical, electrical engineering and controls, lighting, project management, and corrosion control engineering. The company collaborates on large, small, and diverse projects from commercial to industrial work as a prime or sub-consultant with offices in Seattle and Spokane, Washington, Los Angeles, California, Anchorage, Alaska, and Honolulu, Hawaii.
